African Adult Education - A Bibliography

INTRODUCTION

For some years now, I have been making a personal collection of materials relating to adult education on the African Continent, and many of the titles on this list are from that collection. The impulsion to construct a bibliography on the subject came, however, from the Director of Extra-Mural Studies at the University of Khartoum, Mr. Ahmed Abd-el-Halim, who asked for one to assist him to collect books and articles for his own departmental library. The preliminary bibliography prepared at his suggestion was circulated in 1965 by the University of Ibadan, and was used by the Ibadan Department of Adult Education and Extra-Mural Studies to provide adult education students with a fundamental reading list.

This bibliography is an extension and revision of the preliminary one drawn up at Ibadan. It is being put out as a result of the Third Conference of the Adult Education Association of East and Central Africa, held in Nairobi in June 1966. Research into adult education was one of the Conference's main topics, and it was emphasised that one of the problems a research worker faced was a lack of knowledge of sources of material.

This list is put out in the knowledge that, in spite of amplification, it is still tentative. It does not yet contain the full range of bibliographical detail - format, number of pages, etc. - since these are not so significant for the immediate purpose of giving co-workers in adult education some basis to work on. More seriously, it is limited to sources in English and French, and the English sources do not include very many from the United States of America. I should very much welcome information about additional material, and also I would hope that others may be prompted to start work on specialist bibliographies within the African adult education field; for example, it should be possible to prepare some sort of bibliography on the history of adult education in Africa. Meanwhile, a result of this compilation could be to indicate in what areas material is thinnest and research therefore most urgently needed.

An attempt has been made here to fit adult education programmes against the geographical, social, political and economic background, and to distinguish between some of the main agencies of adult education - governments, universities and voluntary associations. I am convinced that it is neither realistic nor sensible to study adult education without relating it to general patterns of life and thus to a community's needs and potentialities. The first section, called Background To African Adult Education, has been put together in this conviction. It should be emphasised that the section is not a general African Studies reading-list, but is a list of works which supply ideas and data valuable to adult education researchers and indeed to anyone who wishes to think seriously about educational policies and educational philosophy in the African context.

Acknowledgments

I am indebted for help and advice to a large number of friends and colleagues, but would like to mention especially Mrs. Margaret Amosu, Dr. John Ballard, Mrs. Ruth Murray, Mr. Hans Noak, Mr. Ayo Ogunsheye, Mr. Simon Radebe and Mr. Akande Tugbiyele. For their encouragement and interest I am particularly beholden to Mr. Ahmed Abd-el Halim, Director of Extra-Mural Studies, University of Khartoum, and Dr. John Lowe, Director of Extra-Mural Studies, University of Edinburgh.

The entire work of typing has been undertaken by Mrs. Valerie Gillon, for whose skill and accuracy I am most grateful.
